

STUDENT ASSISTANT MARKETING AND COMMUNICATIONS (m/f/d)

Your job as a student assistant in DSA's Marketing and Communications department will put you right in the exciting world of Future Mobility. Whether online, print or event - you are part of it all and support us from creating ideas to implementing them. As part of a great team, you will have the chance to develop into an expert in internal and external communications. We will challenge, support and accompany you along the way.

What you do

You are participating in all phases of content generation, from brainstorming, research, conception and content editing.

You are creating content for our communication channels SocialMedia, online presences and trade press.

You help to design our internal and external presentations and print documents.

You support us in the graphic design and ideally in the video production.

What you bring along

You are studying German language and literature, communication, media design, graphic design or something comparable and can support us with at least 15 hours/week.

You are reliable, committed to quality and, above all, eager to learn.

Your MS Office skills are strong and you are familiar with graphics applications, ideally Adobe CS.

Experience in video production or in dealing with content management systems is an absolute plus.

You have a strong sense of language, are skilled at copywriting, and have a solid knowledge of both German and English.

What we offer you

With us you get a taste of professional B2B marketing.

Challenging and interesting tasks and the flexibility to organize your working days according to your university schedule.

Lovely colleagues who are happy to take on board your ideas and impulses.

Coffee for free and an incomparable view of the Eifel on top!
